As a general thing grass is cut too late, as witness the haying this, the 15th day of July 1873. The most of such hay is pure woody triment except what is found in the seed; the seed is ripe and the hay as nearly worthless as can be. I would prefer to feed good carly-cut oat straw to such hay. But it weighs heavy, and that is what the farmer is after, because he intends to sell it. When fiber, without almost a particle of nubecause he intends to sell it. When the seed is allowed to ripen for the cold day, he did not invite the lady purpose of threshing and sale, the hay out to examine his wares, but hasten-ought to be bound and shocked like ed away to get the samples. It is as hard— posited them on the floor, in front of the lady, who next asked if he had any good Pennsylvania farmers claim harder—on the land than the production of either wheat or oats, and more exhausting than either rye or corn. Of course, on rich land this crop, when raised for seed, is a profitable one. New seed is the best for sowing, and this brings me to the question which heads this paper.

If your land is well plowed let it be harrowed very thoroughly with a "Scotch" or "smoothing" harrow, then sow about one-fourth (1) bushel of timothy seed per acre, and this is a nice operation if performed by hand; the lady, who next asked if he had any tin pans. Away he hurried to bring the pans, and chuckling at the success of his zeal, muttered, "There is nothing like sticking. Hereafter my motto shall be, 'stick'!"

After the pans were deposited, the lady next called for colanders. Away went the peddler to get the articles, saying to himself, "My motto is 'stick'!"

The last days of August and the first days in September inclusive, is the best time to sow timothy, (sow without any other crop). After the sowing, a good brush harrow, made by properly tying together three or four broom-headed, small trees, should be run over the field, unless a good heavy shower of rain should fall about this time; in that case the brush harrow can be dispensed with. After this, where the ground is in proper conditions and the first days in September inclusive, is then her adversary's king was in a position to be attacked, and she in a position to be attacked, and she muttered the accustomed word "Very sorry, ma'am, that I have no checks," replied the peddler. "It must be a new article, isn't it ma'am?" The lady players looked at each other and smiled, and one of them remarked, "It is said to be thousands of years old."

Sow on what is called a "sugar snow," or just before a good rain. This will cover the seeds deep enough without harrowing or brushing. The frequent failures of securing a good stand arise from the fact that such fine seeds as timothy and clover are generally covered too deep.

The lady calmly lifted her eyes, and answerd, with imperturbable coolness, "Oh, no! I don't want any of these. I only asked if you had them!"

Then it dawned on the peddler that he had been badly sold, and after reloading, muttered, "My motto is cut stick."

WHEN George the Second was once told by some of his confidential friends that everything was complained of, and that the people were extremely dissatisfied at the tardiness of making the public payments, he in great wrath sent for the old Duke of Newcastle, his Prime Minister, and told him he would no longer suffer such infamous delays, but was determined to inspect and regulate the accounts himself, and for this purpose he commanded that the proper papers should be immediately sont to St. Lames. "They shall the proper papers should be immediately sent to St. James. "They shall be sent to your majesty to-morrow," replied the Duke. When the king rose in the morning, and looked out of his window, he saw two wagons load of papers, each tied with red tape, unloading in the area. Enquiring what they were, he was told they came from the Duke of Newcastle, to whom he the Duke of Newcastle, to whom he exceeds the most sanguine expectations sent to know what it meant. "They are the papers for examination," said "Sir?" the Duke; "twelve more wagon loads for your majesty's inspection will be sent in the course of the day." "For my inspectian!" replied the enraged monarch; "for my inspection. The devil's chief clerk may inspect them, but I would as soon walk barefooted to Jerasalem."

"I remarked that this was a very pleasant evening, and that the assemblage here quite exceeded the most sanguine expectations of our excellent hostess and friend, Mrs. ——."

How to be Polite.

Do not try too hard to be polite .-Never overwhelm your friends by begging them to make themselves at home or they will soon wish they were there. Show by your actions rather than your words that you are glad to see them. Have enough regard for yourself to treat your greatest enemy with quiet politeness. All petty slights are merely meanness, and hurt yourself more than any one else

Do not talk about yourself or your family to the exclusion of other topics. What if you are clever, and a little more so than other people, it may not be that other folks will think so whatever they ought to do.

It may be interesting to you to talk over ailments, but very tiresome for others to listen to. Make people think you consider them pleasant and agreeable, and they will be pretty apt to have a pleasant impression of yourself. Treat people just as you would like to have them treat you.

It is much easier to lose the good opinion of people than to retain it; and when any one does not care for the good opinion of others, he or she is not worthy of respect. Do not excuse your house, furniture, or the table you set before your guests. It is fair to suppose their vis-

Checkmating a Peddler.

The Hartford times has a passion for all sorts of chess puzzles comun-drums and oddities. In that respect no one was ever known to "check" it. Being left free to gratify its inclina-tions, it relates the following good story anent the ever favorite game: Everybody knows how persevering and persistent all peddlers are, and especially tinware peddlers. As a class they are the most persevering mortals that ever traversed the streets of a city. Now one of those itinerant ven-

The Right Time to Sow Timothy and Clover.

In this county, and in all others where there is a good sale for hay, there is no crop which brings better returns for the same expenditure than pure timothy hay, if wanted for horses, or timothy and clover if for cow feed. For the last five or six years (since my attention has been directed to this subject), there has been more waste of hay by negligent and too late cutting and exposure to the weather—expenditly heavy daws for two or three.

They quarreled now, who little cared be regarded as a pest.

At one house in particular, owned and occupied by a maiden lady who kept a single servant, he had met with constant rebuffs and assurance that nothing was wanted; but, as it was a boast of his that he never gave up calling at a place until he sold them something, he continued his trouble-some visits until the lady of the house was at her wit's end how to stop them.

Now, it so happened that this lady, who was a chess player, and passionately fond of the game, one day, while playing with a lady friend, was excessively annoyed by the everlasting peddler, who had pushed past the servant girl, as he had repeatedly done before, and stood before the mistress, and with oily tongue, regardless of the apparent fact that the lady was deeply interested in the game of chess, tried his utmost to force a sale of his goods.

To the lady's decided "No!" re-

To the lady's decided "No!" repeated several times, he simply rehearsed the catalogue of his wares again and again, until patience on her part ceased to be a virtue, and she wondered if her favorite game, which said taught so many things, would not show her how his impertinence could be perpetually checked without resor-

No one remedy is louder called for by the necessities of the American people than a sare and safe cure for Fever and Ague. Such we are now enabled to offer, with a perfect certainty that it will eradicate the disease, and with assurance, founded on proof, that no harm can arise from its use in any quantity.

That which protects from or prevents this disorder must be of immense service in the communities where it prevails. Prevention disorder must be of immense service in the communities where it prevails. Presention is better than cure; for the patient escapes the risk which he must run in violent attacks of this beleful distemper. This "CURE" expels the minsmatic poison of Fever and Ague from the system, and prevents the development of the disease, if taken on the first approach of its premonitory symptoms. A great superiority of this remedy over any other ever discovered for the speedy and certain cure of intermittents is, that it contains no Quinine or mineral; consequently it produces no quinism or other injurious effects whatever upon the constitution. Those cured by it are left as healthy as if they had never had the disease. SOUTHERN HOTEL

Fever and Ague is not alone the consequence of the minematic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Howels, Colic, Parniysis, and derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the intermittent type, or become periodical. This "Cuñe" expels the poison from the blood, and consequently cures them all alike. It is an invaluable protection to immigrants and persons travelling or temporarily residing in the malarious districts. If taken occasionally or daily while exposed to the infection, that will be excreted from the system, and cannot accumulate in sufficient quantity to ripen into disease. Hence it is even more valuable for protection than cure; and few will ever suffer from Intermittents if they avail themselves of the protection this remedy affords.
